

Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Monday 22 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Rain through the morning, turning dry and bright later.

Today:

A wet start for most, though these outbreaks of rain will clear through the morning, leaving a dry afternoon with bright skies. Light winds throughout, and feeling mild, especially in the sunshine. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Tonight:

While this evening remains dry, cloud encroaches from the west overnight, bringing with it a chance of light rain in the early hours, with winds strengthening throughout. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Tuesday:

Outbreaks of rain through the day and night in the north of the region, heavy at times. Southernmost areas likely to remain largely dry. Strong winds and coastal gales throughout. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Outlook for Wednesday to Friday:

Further wind and rain on Wednesday, reaching slightly further south. Sunshine and showers on Thursday, with light winds. Dry with bright skies on Friday. Mild days but increasingly colder nights.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.